Words on Fire

The Russian Cossacks insist that all Lithuanians must become Russian. They have banned Lithuanian books, religion, culture, and even the language. But Audra knows her parents are involved in something secret and perilous. When soldiers arrive abruptly at their door, Audra's parents insist that she flee, taking with her an important package. Escape means abandoning her parents to a terrible fate. Audra embarks on a journey to deliver the package and becomes caught up in an underground resistance. Can joining this network give Audra a chance to rescue her parents?

Resistance

Teenage Chaya lives in Nazi-occupied Poland. After her little sister is taken away, her younger brother disappears, and her parents give up hope, Chaya is determined to make a difference. Using forged papers and her fair features, Chaya smuggles food, papers, and even people. After a mission goes terribly wrong, Chaya's network shatters. She is alone and unsure of where to go. Esther, a member of her cell, delivers a message that chills Chaya to her core, and sends her on a journey toward the unforgettable Warsaw Ghetto.

A Night Divided

Without warning and overnight, a wall separates Gerta's family into two. She and her mother are on the Soviet east side. Her father and brother, who had gone west in search of work, cannot return home. Armed guards prevent anyone from even loitering near the new wall. One day, she spots her father on the western side of the Berlin wall, pantomiming a peculiar dance. Then she receives a mysterious drawing. Despite the danger, it is clear that she must try for freedom.
